

ESMAP Renewable Energy Markets Transformation Initiative (REMTI)

Invites you to a BBL to discuss

RE Market Trends: Analysis of India, Brazil and China Presentation by Senior Analysts from Bloomberg New Energy Finance Global Team

Tuesday, April 12, 2011, 12:30 – 2:00 PM
Room: I 1-200

Chair

Rohit Khanna, Program Manager, ESMAP

- Justin Wu, Head of Research, China, will provide an overview of key renewable energy demands in China, taking into account recent policy changes and the strategic outlook for the country's leading wind and solar manufacturers.
- Ashish Sethia, Head of Research, India, will take stock of historical growth in installed capacity and investments in Indian clean energy sector with forecast for near future.
- Maria Gabriela da Rocha Oliveira, Head of Research, Latin America, will provide an overview of clean energy investment in Latin America, looking at regional and technology trends.

External participants, please email Gloria Whitaker at gwhitaker@worldbank.org to register.

ESMAP's renewable energy program is assisting countries develop clean, and reliable solar, geothermal, wind, and small hydroelectric power plants across the world. ESMAP is working with country governments and the private sector to adopt, adapt, and deploy identified renewable energy technologies for grid-connected power generation.

Bloomberg New Energy Finance (BNEF) is an independent provider of research to decision-makers in renewable energy, energy efficiency, bioenergy, carbon capture and storage, nuclear power, and the carbon markets. The company has a staff of more than 140, based in London, Washington DC, New York, Palo Alto, Beijing, New Delhi, Hyderabad, Cape Town, São Paulo and Perth.

For more information, please contact: Agnes Biribonwa (abiribonwa@worldbank.org).